ANTHR 341
Self-Assessment

Name (Last, First):

In the spirit of the "un-grading" movement, I would like to take your own assessment of your own work in this course meaningfully into account in the grading process. This requires you to assess your own performance carefully and honestly in light of the expectations and assignments outlined in the syllabus for this course. To this end, please answer the following questions and fill out the form below, referring to the course syllabus as needed. As discussed in the course, our mutual understanding is that you will take a holistic approach to assessing the work that you put into this course, including all readings, writing, discussion, etc.

You will turn in a portfolio of the work that you completed for this ANTHR 341 course, as described below. This portfolio should be UPLOADED TO BOX (to your personal assignment drop box folder). Each file within that portfolio should also be named accordingly (LASTNAME_FIRSTNAME--NameOfAssignment.PDF), using the assignment descriptors in the syllabus.

You may only self-assess work that has been submitted in the portfolio, but this can include a brief statement of how you engaged with readings, notes, or even a reflection of what you took away from the course in each category. Please report both a percentage that you would assign yourself as a grade for each major category, as well as a short description of how you assess your own performance (e.g., quality, effort, etc.) for each category. This percentage (1-100) should consider both the quality and quantity of the work, in the spirit of what it outlined in the syllabus. Below is a suggestion (but not a requirement) of the categories that you might include in your self-assessment. You have the option to ignore these categories altogether and provide alternative logic or evidence of your effort and contributions to this course.
